

Uhuru Investment Partners Announces New Managing Director, Private Equity

Uhuru Investment Partners is pleased to announce the appointment of Amaka Paul-Okafor as Managing Director, Private Equity, effective 1 November 2025.

Amaka joins Uhuru with over 15 years' experience spanning private equity, portfolio management, and business operations across Africa and Europe. She has a proven record of driving value creation, shaping strategy, and leading transactions across multiple sectors.

Prior to joining Uhuru, Amaka served with Helios Investment Partners, where she was a founding member of the climate-focused fund and previously managed portfolio operations for energy and infrastructure investments. Her earlier experience includes investment banking with UBS AG in London and operational and strategic roles with Siemens (Dresser-Rand) and Groupon UK & Ireland.

Amaka holds an MBA from INSEAD and a BEng in Materials Science and Engineering from Imperial College London.

At Uhuru, she will lead the firm's private equity investment activities, focusing on origination, execution, and portfolio value creation, while deepening Uhuru's commitment to building sustainable African businesses that deliver long-term impact.

Commenting on the appointment, Dr. Yemi Osindero, Managing Partner of Uhuru Investment Partners, said:

"Amaka's appointment reflects the continued strengthening of our leadership team as we prepare for Uhuru's next phase of growth. Her depth of experience in African private equity and her track record in building value-driven businesses align strongly with our vision of creating resilient enterprises that deliver sustainable returns and impact across the continent. We are delighted to welcome her to the Partnership."
